REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

To the Trustees of Wellesley College:

I have the honor to submit the report for the year 1944-45, the seventieth session of Wellesley College.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

The death of President Emeritus Caroline Hazard marked the end of forty-six years of association with the College. President from 1899 to 1911, Miss Hazard did much to enrich the life of the College. Her generous gifts through the years are matched only by the generous giving of herself for any project which needed her services. The memorial minute adopted by the Board of Trustees and the Academic Council appears in the appendix to this report.

The resignation of Dr. Albert D. Mead deprives the Board of one of its wisest, most genial, and helpful counselors.

Mr. John P. Chase returned on June 25 to resume his duties as Treasurer after a year in the European Theater of Operations on appointment as Associate Administrative Director of the American-British Laboratory. This was the Radar Counter-Measure Division of the National Defense Research Committee organized under the Office of Scientific Research and Development. It operated from headquarters in England and on the continent. In Mr. Chase's absence the Acting Treasurer was Mr. F. Murray Forbes whose constant interest and detailed consideration of the needs of the College are one of its great strengths.

The amendment to the by-laws which provided for the annual reelection during the national emergency of trustees whose normal terms have expired made it possible to reelection Mr. Curtiss, Mr. Dodge, Mr. Hunnewell, Dr. Merrill, and President Sills. The presence of these gentlemen who for eighteen to twenty-two years have guided the destinies of the College has maintained stability in a period of rapidly shifting demands on colleges, and Wellesley is much indebted to them.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE

THE FACULTY

Professor Louise Sherwood McDowell retired from the faculty at the end of thirty-six years. Being appointed as professor in 1913, she has a unique record for service at that rank. As chairman of the department of physics for many years, she has been a major factor in establishing it as one of the outstanding science departments for women in the United States. Associate Professor Edith Winifred Moses retired from the department of speech after twenty-two years of valued service to the College.

The College was fortunate in the fact that most of the war service of its members could be rendered while they continued in their teaching relationship to the College. We have, however, been well represented in government and military circles by thirteen members of the faculty. Their experience as they return from the diverse backgrounds of the war years will be a stimulating factor in planning for the future.

A list of new members, resignations, and promotions will be found in the appendix to this report.

THE ALUMNAE

The resignation of Carol Johnston Sibley as Executive Secretary of the Alumnae Association terminated a very useful period of reorganization in the Alumnae Office and marked the beginning of another significant era under the leadership of Helen Swormstedt Mansfield '18.

The Alumnae Fund represented the gifts of 9,836 alumnae and totaled $67,349. It will be noted at many places through this report that the alumnae have taken a close and active interest in the work of the College.

CHARACTERISTICS OF 1944-1945

The year 1944-45 may be characterized in two ways: It was an expensive year and a deliberative one.

I. 1944-45 was an expensive year. The cost of operating any institution increased greatly as expenditures which had been deferred during the war became possible. In Wellesley's case, the major increase in the cost of food and of labor was augmented by the decision of the trustees to increase faculty salaries. Beginning with the second half of the year, the minimum salaries of the various academic ranks were changed as follows:

Rank	Old Scale	New Scale
Instructors . . . . .	$1,800	$2,000
Assistant professors . . . . .	2,500	2,750
Associate professors . . . . .	3,000	3,500
Professors . . . . .	4,000	4,500

The cost of these increases made an annual total of approximately $32,000. Such an increase at this time was made possible by the very generous bequest of Candace C. Stimson '92. The new salaries compare favorably with those in other women's colleges but are still below the norm for men's colleges.

During the war years the operation of the College had been conducted at a bare minimum of expense, and it was during the year covered by this report that members of the faculty and staff were encouraged to formulate the needs which had been in abeyance for too long. There was an easing up of limitations on having adequate clerical assistance, and an effort was made to decrease some of the teaching loads which had become educationally unsound during the war shortages. In addition to these expenses the withdrawal of the Navy Supply Corps School offered the timely opportunity to redecorate the buildings which had been occupied by the School.

For the first time in nineteen years Wellesley operated at a deficit. This is clearly not a healthy state for a college and it can be altered only by decreasing expenses or increasing the resources of the College. Since none of the additional expenditures seem to be unjustified, the obvious way to deal with a deficit is to try to increase the income while maintaining strict economy.

The appointment of Clara More de Morinni '04 as Endowment Secretary indicates the interest of the trustees in augmenting the efforts to increase the resources of the College. Mrs. de Morinni has for seven years been the head of Tower Court and is well acquainted with the needs of the College and with a large number of its alumnae and friends. Her appointment will facilitate a close coördination of action on the part of the trustees with that of the Fund Committee of the Alumnae Association so that all interested groups will cooperate to their maximum efficiency.

II. 1944-45 was a developmental year with significant progress made in a variety of plans. These include those relating to curriculum and equipment, a proposed school of nursing, the reorganization of the Academic Council, the Mayling Soong Foundation, the classification of the clerical staff, the organization of the business offices, societies, student work in residences, and the summer use of the campus.

Curriculum and Equipment. The Trustee Committee on Postwar Planning not only drew up suggested plans of physical equipment, but discussed with the Faculty Committee on Long-Term Educational Policy the kind of institution which could be visualized for the future. Both committees were convinced that there should be "no change in the fundamental character and structure of Wellesley as a liberal arts college of about fifteen hundred, with a four-year course for the degree."

The Trustee Committee on Postwar Planning recommended to the Board of Trustees that additional dormitories on the campus, a library, an art building, and a music building were four immediate and urgent demands. It was voted by the trustees that a small unrestricted building fund, established by an anonymous trustee, should be augmented by the sum of $34,634 contributed from the undesignated gift of the Alumnae Fund. This General Building Fund established the intent of the trustees to proceed in the immediate future toward a development of the physical plant to facilitate the work of the College. Wellesley has often been criticized for devoting too large a share of its wealth to the maintenance of its campus and the erection of beautiful buildings. The entire trend of the discussions among both faculty and trustees has been in the direction of insisting upon functional utility rather than monumental extravagance. There is no inclination to build buildings just for the sake of having more to show. It is, however, clearly recognized that if students can be housed in fireproof buildings located conveniently to the rest of their work, their college life can be enhanced. The criticism of our present attractive library is that it is monumental rather than functional. It lacks the facilities for individual independent study which is a part of the present teaching method, and the absence of facilities for efficient handling of books makes them less useful than could be wished. The College is proud of the work which is being done in its art and music departments in spite of totally inadequate surroundings. If such excellent results can be obtained in over-crowded quarters without the facilities for the use of modern teaching aids, it is anticipated that even more distinguished results can be achieved if the departments are given modern tools in buildings built for that purpose. Wellesley is now old enough so that it has reached the point of necessary replacement, but it would be an unfair indictment of the College to assume that anybody connected with its administration considers its physical equipment the most important part of the institution.

The studies by the Faculty Committee on Long-Term Educational Policy confirm that last statement. This committee, under the chairmanship of Assistant Professor Virginia Onderdonk of the philosophy department, included the following: Alice H. Armstrong, Associate Professor of Physics, Lennie P. Copeland, Professor of Mathematics, Charlotte E. Goodfellow, Assistant Professor of Latin and History, Walter E. Houghton, Associate Professor of English Literature, Louise Overacker, Professor of Political Science, John G. Pilley, Associate Professor of Education, and (ex officio) Dean Ella Keats Whiting. While Harvard University has been making its report on the future of liberal education, its committee has had a permanent secretary and an appropriation almost as large as Wellesley's deficit! The Wellesley committee has worked without any special clerical assistance, has met for an entire evening almost every week, and has made a very comprehensive and thorough investigation into the current publications from other institutions and into the whole theory of liberal education. Wellesley will long be indebted to this group of faculty members.

It was agreed that the report of this committee would be discussed with a committee of alumnae to be appointed by the board of the Alumnae Association, and that plan will be carried out in the fall. During the entire academic year a committee of students has worked on its own independent study of the problem of planning a curriculum for a college of liberal arts and has presented its report to the faculty committee. This means that all the groups concerned with planning for the future are working together in such a way that the forthcoming plan will be the result of many points of view. The report of the Faculty Committee on Long-Term Educational Policy will be acted upon by the Academic Council during the coming year.

As a contribution to the planning for the postwar development of the College, every member of the faculty was asked to contribute suggestions about anything which would strengthen the College. Replies were received from a very large percentage of the teaching staff and included widely varied suggestions. They will be summarized for consideration by the appropriate committees of the trustees in connection with plans for future development.

Proposed School of Nursing. During the summer of 1944 the College was approached by the School of Nursing of the Massachusetts General Hospital about the possibility of establishing a combined course which in a five-year program would permit a girl to earn both the bachelor's degree and a nursing degree. The trustees asked the Academic Council to consider such an affiliation. After careful study by a faculty committee under the chairmanship of Professor Mary L. Coolidge, the Council recommended the establishment of a course which would affiliate the College with the School of Nursing provided that no funds should be expended toward furthering it which have accumulated for the purpose of developing Wellesley as a college of liberal arts. The trustees did not feel that it was possible to accept the responsibility for providing funds for this venture and the matter was, therefore, dropped. The discussions which preceded the recommendation of the Academic Council were in themselves rewarding as they helped to clarify the thinking of the Council on the responsibility of a liberal arts college for women in connection with community services.

Reorganization of the Academic Council. A committee of the faculty under the chairmanship of Professor Judith B. Williams has undertaken a careful and extremely profitable study of the organization of the Academic Council which resulted in several modifications by the Board of Trustees. The membership was enlarged to include more of the newer and less permanently established members of the faculty as voters rather than auditors. The new statement of membership reads as follows:

The Academic Council shall consist of the president, deans, the librarian, the resident physician, professors, associate professors, assistant professors; and, in their second or subsequent appointments, instructors and lecturers (with full-time programs of teaching academic subjects) and research librarians; and such other officers of instruction and administration as may be given this responsibility by vote of the Trustees.

There were numerous changes in the committee structure of the Academic Council, and the whole report moved in the direction of clarifying the function of the Council as an efficient deliberative assembly, responsible for maintaining a democratic form of organization for the College.

The Mayling Soong Foundation. The Mayling Soong Foundation has now been operating for three years. In order to clarify its purposes, the following statement of policy was drawn up by the Program Committee, approved by the Academic Council, and adopted by the Executive Committee of the Foundation:

The Mayling Soong Foundation provides for Wellesley College the means to make a very real contribution to the mutual understanding of East and West, and thereby to build a living monument to its most distinguished Chinese alumna, Mme. Chiang Kai-shek.

Wellesley's character as a liberal arts college must of necessity condition the rôle which it is to play in this important field of human relations. The Foundation Committee and the College are aware of the undesirability of attempting to compete with the larger universities in the research field. They have, therefore, sought to make the most of the opportunity which a residence college of this type affords by developing a program within the existing framework of the College which will create an intelligent interest among Wellesley students in the background and current phases of the problems of Asia and the Pacific. The object is to bring these students into intimate and continuing contact with these problems, both in their normal academic work and in their other relations within the College community.

There is no fixed method by which this object is to be achieved. The program has intentionally been kept extremely flexible in order to permit experimentation and adaptation to changing conditions. At the present time, steps are being taken to build up the Far Eastern Collection in the Library and other collections illustrating various aspects of Oriental civilizations. Special lecturers are invited to address the College from time to time. It is planned to hold exhibits and institutes on the Far East at regular intervals. Scholarships are now provided for students from China, India, and elsewhere in the region. Eminent visitors from these countries have been invited to come to Wellesley for periods of several months as resident scholars. It is hoped that, as world conditions improve, it may be possible to send graduate students or faculty members to the Orient for special study.

This program is not pretentious, but its effects may be far reaching. The opportunity is offered by it for broadening mutual understanding and sympathetic interest not only through academic study but also through personal relations and the formation of continuing friendships between students of the Orient and of the West. It seeks to make the East a greater reality to the members of the College community as a whole and, indirectly, to the larger group with which its members will eventually come in contact.

In accord with this policy it was a pleasure to welcome to the campus as lecturer-in-residence for two months Dr. Y. C. Yang, President of Soochow University. Dr. Yang lectured to individual classes as well as to the whole college and contributed much to the life of the community as a Chinese gentleman and scholar.

Classification of the Clerical Staff. The unionization of the grounds and domestic employees and the formation of salary and tenure policies in reference to the faculty left only the group of clerical employees working without explicit understanding of their status and employment prospects. It is, therefore, a satisfaction to report that during this year a classification of clerical positions was adopted together with accepted rates of pay for each classification and a standardized vacation arrangement for all employees in the several classifications. This plan was drawn up under the direction of Julia J. Henderson and has been ably administered by her successor in the Personnel Office, Mrs. Mary C. Armstrong.

Organization of the Business Offices. A plan for the business organization of the College was adopted informally several years ago and included the appointment of a purchasing agent to be responsible directly to the Business Manager. We have been fortunate in securing Philip V. Burt (B.S., Massachusetts Institute of Technology) who has been manager of the dormitories at Babson Institute for many years. His appointment on February 1 as Purchasing Agent permitted the organization of the Purchasing Division and completed the staffing of the business offices.

Societies. A long and careful study of the student societies was made by a committee of undergraduates under the chairmanship of Mrs. Fiora Mariotti Houghteling '41, Instructor in Political Science. The committee canvassed student opinion in regard to the rôle of societies and reached the general conclusion that they perform a valuable function in providing social centers for groups of congenial students outside the residence units. The traditional study feature of the societies has been markedly reduced in recent years and is apparently not in great demand because the all-college extracurricular activities and modern teaching methods have provided many of the values which the society projects used to provide. The committee, therefore, reported the hope that any upperclassmen who wanted to join a society might be allowed to do so in order to maintain the value of society organization but prevent it from being the exclusive province of a small group of students. The report was considered by the Intersociety Council which made certain modifications and suggestions, and it is proposed to consider the matter further next year.

Student Work in Residences. The war situation necessitated the continuance of the program of student help in dormitories and it was integrated more closely into the life of the College by having the responsibility for dormitory work placed under the jurisdiction of the College Government Association.

Summer Use of the Campus. A list of the conferences and schools held on the campus in the summer of 1944 appears in the appendix of this report.

One of the most interesting developments of the year was the plan for the summer use of the campus in 1945. It was formulated with the coöperation of our trustee, Mrs. Marie Rahr Haffenreffer, who arranged a program which would use the facilities of the campus without waste space or time. The schedule included not only seven outside conference groups who were to rent the buildings, but also a second session of the School of Community Affairs and the School of Techniques. The summer of 1944 saw these two projects of the College established as small but extremely stimulating enterprises. Arrangements were made this year to affiliate the School of Community Affairs, under the direction of Charles E. Hendry, with the project in group relationships under the direction of Kurt Lewin at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Everyone was interested in the plans which would help to make the Wellesley College campus a center for stimulating and provocative adult education programs. To our great regret, the Office of Defense Transportation in Washington ruled that none of these conferences were essential to the war effort, and since they all involved the travel of more than fifty people from a distance the entire program for the summer was canceled.

THE COLLEGE CALENDAR

Each war year has involved some change in the scheduling of the work of the College. The year 1944-45 opened on August 23, the first semester ending December 15. The second semester, January 16 to May 20, included plans for a more extended spring vacation than that scheduled the preceding year, but on very short notice a request was received from the Office of Defense Transportation for the cancelation of all vacations involving travel. At a special student assembly called at the suggestion of the Academic Council for the purpose of discussing this request, the student body voted to remain in residence during a somewhat shortened vacation period. It is high tribute to the patriotism and coöperativeness of undergraduates that they accepted the restriction with good spirit and ingenuity.

After careful consideration it was decided to return to the pre-war calendar for the academic year 1945-46. The difficulty of opening the College in August when it is not in session twelve months of the year is very real. The employees who supplement their college income by summer work are not through with hotel duties and other summer assignments until after Labor Day, and they then need some vacation before returning to their work at the College. The educational values of ending the first semester before Christmas do not seem great enough to justify the expense and inconvenience of trying to operate the institution without adequate staff.

By the time this report is published it will be no secret that the Navy is planning to grant me an extended leave so that I may re-assume virtually full-time duties as President of the College. For three years I have been personally and professionally indebted to Mrs. Haffenreffer, Dean Whiting, and Dean Wilson who added my duties to theirs while I commuted spasmodically between Washington and Wellesley. My experience as Director of the Women's Reserve of the United States Naval Reserve, made possible by the generous coöperation of all governing groups of the College, has made me surer than ever that American women have vast responsibility for the future of their nation and of the united world. Wellesley College will maintain its tradition and fulfill its promise if it recognizes these obligations of citizenship and prepares each generation of students to assume them gladly, intelligently, and with determination "to decide in the strife of truth with falsehood for the good" and not the evil side.

Respectfully submitted,

MILDRED H. MCAFEE,
Captain, U.S.N.R.

APPENDIX TO THE PRESIDENT'S REPORT

MINUTE IN MEMORY OF CAROLINE HAZARD

Adopted by the Academic Council on May 16, and by the Board of Trustees on May 18, 1945

Miss Caroline Hazard, fifth President of Wellesley College, died at her winter home, Mission Hill, Santa Barbara, on March 19, 1945. Her real home was at Peace Dale, Rhode Island, where she was born on June 10, 1856. As a girl she attended Miss Shaw's School in Providence, and studied later under various teachers at home and abroad. She was known as experienced in business administration, and also as deeply interested in the arts of music, painting and literature and was the author of several works of local history and poetry, before her appointment to succeed the late Mrs. Irvine as President.

She was inaugurated in the newly-built Houghton Memorial Chapel October 3, 1899. Between her taking of office and her retirement because of ill health in 1910 the College was notably developed in equipment and resources. Eleven buildings were erected in the eleven years of her Presidency, including Mary Hemenway Hall, Billings Hall, the four halls in the Quadrangle which now bears her name, and Oakwoods, a gift by her to the College, now the residence of the Dean of Students, but for many years the President's House. The association with Wellesley College of the former Boston Normal School of Gymnastics established here the notable Department of Hygiene and Physical Education. The Department of Music was firmly established under the late Professor Macdougall and the late Professor Hamilton. The Three Sisters Choir Fund, the Katharine Lee Bates Professorship in English Literature and the Caroline Hazard Professorship of Music were all gifts by Miss Hazard. Innumerable smaller benefactions to the College and to individuals were quietly made by her; her latest large gift, that of the famous love letters of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, was particularly intended to gratify another generous donor and Trustee, the late George Herbert Palmer.

All these tangible gifts were allied with an intangible contribution made by her emphasis on grace, dignity and beauty in life, on spiritual resources; the setting of Oakwoods imparted to social life greater charm, the choir heightened reverence in the chapel services. It is significant that one of Miss Hazard's first official acts was to change week-day chapel services from required to voluntary.

APPENDIX

She was interested in many matters of concern outside the College, and not only greatly stimulated the students to take interest in the larger world, but also enhanced the importance of the College in the eyes of that larger world. Her numerous publications included poetry and works, original and edited, of local biography and history.

She was the recipient of an honorary degree of M.A. from the University of Michigan, and a Litt.D. from Brown University in 1899; an LL.D. from Tufts College in 1905, and another from Wellesley in 1925, at its Semi-Centennial. In 1931 Mills College bestowed on her a Litt.D. in well-merited recognition of her concern to record in painting the story of the early Spanish Missions. Her portrait by Cecilia Beaux was given to the College by the Class of 1903, which, entering Wellesley with her, made her its honorary member.

Until the very last unconscious weeks of her long life she kept her vigor of mind, her keen interest in affairs, her wisdom, and her deep religious faith. In her death Wellesley College loses a generous and devoted officer and friend.

REPORT OF THE TREASURER

1944-1945

To the Trustees of Wellesley College:

The annual statement covering the financial affairs of Wellesley College for the year ended June 30, 1945 is submitted herewith.

This report sets forth the financial condition of the College as of June 30, 1945 and records the financial transactions that have taken place during the fiscal year ending on that date.

I should like to take this opportunity of expressing my deep appreciation to Mr. Forbes, who assumed the duties and responsibilities of the Treasurer's office during my year's absence on a Government mission in the European Theatre of Operations. In the effective service he rendered the College as Acting Treasurer he was greatly aided by the close cooperation of the Finance Committee and by the able assistance of Mr. Height and Mr. Brainerd.

The past year has been a particularly difficult one for those who had to shoulder the responsibilities of managing the financial affairs of the College, since operating costs were increasing rapidly and considerable dislocation resulted from the withdrawal of the Navy Supply School from the campus. The operating result for the year should be viewed in the light of these difficulties, and due allowance should be made for the fact that many extraordinary expenditures were charged against the year's operations. In order to take advantage of the Navy's withdrawal, the Acting Treasurer and Assistant Treasurer very wisely availed themselves of the opportunity to accomplish many long overdue improvements. Had these improvements not been undertaken at a time when several of the College buildings were being reconditioned, it would have been far more costly to have done the work at a later date.

The changes that were instituted in the accounting policies and practices of the College during the previous year have worked out smoothly, and in addition during the year the books of the College were transferred to a cash basis.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE

CURRENT OPERATIONS

For the year ended June 30, 1945 interest at 4% was distributed to the endowment and other funds, as has been the case for the past twelve years. On this basis an operating deficit of $67,773.47 resulted. The explanation of this unfavorable result involves four principal factors:

(1) The cost of living had risen to a point where it became necessary to make substantial adjustments in salaries and wages, which are reflected in the increase of $133,896.00 in this item as compared with the previous year.

(2) The expense of operating the dormitories and other buildings rose sharply, as indicated by increases of $40,600.00 in food costs, $13,122.00 in power station costs, and $94,119.00 in miscellaneous items.

(3) The Summer School and Conference program resulted in a deficit of $9,800.00.

(4) As stated above, advantage was taken of the departure of the Navy from the campus to accomplish a substantial number of changes and improvements in buildings that had been occupied or used by Navy personnel. A portion of the cost of the new furnishings and equipment was charged against the year's operating expenses in the amount of $6,252.00, the remainder being charged to the Reserve Fund for Depreciation of Buildings, as noted on page 42.

The total increase in operating expenses was $470,585.48, against which there was an offsetting increase of $251,988.66 in operating income, which accounts for the operating deficit of $67,773.47 for 1944-45 as contrasted with the operating surplus of $150,823.35 for 1943-44.

This operating deficit in itself should not cause undue concern, but it does focus attention on certain trends that I feel must be realistically faced. The inflationary forces in the world today are very real and it is to be questioned whether any relief can be expected from the substantial rise in operating costs that has been witnessed during the past year. In fact, evidence indicates that the forces causing the increased expenses of 1945 are likely to continue to aggravate the financial problems of the College.

TREASURER'S REPORT

In addition, although Wellesley College has been fortunate in maintaining its income from invested funds at a level sufficiently high to permit the continued payment of interest at 4% to its funds, the steady pressure of declining interest rates is bound to result in a substantial decrease from the 4.40% return earned during the past year. With long-term Government bonds selling to return less than 2½%, it is obvious that a reduced return on our invested funds is an almost certain prospect. During the year $933,445.82 fixed-interest-bearing securities in our portfolio were called or matured and it was necessary to reinvest this money at a lower rate of return. This refunding of higher coupon fixed-interest-bearing securities is continuing unabated.

On the favorable side of the picture, it should be pointed out that although an operating deficit of $67,773.47 was charged against the Administrative Reserve Fund, $67,782.48 of income was added to the principal of various funds while an additional $48,843.95 of excess investment income (over and above the 4% rate paid to our permanent funds) was added to the Securities Income Reserve Fund.

CHANGES IN RESERVE FUNDS DURING THE YEAR

	$1,279,811.33	$1,404,208.38	$124,397.05

Included in the above figures are the following amounts of interest which were credited to the respective Reserve Funds at the rate of 4% on their average balances:

Administrative Reserve Fund. . . . .	$16,435.38
Securities Income Reserve Fund. . . . .	4,757.79
Reserve Fund for Depreciation of Buildings. . . . .	27,697.48
Accidents Reserve Fund. . . . .	678.20

The balance of the changes is accounted for as follows:

WELLESLEY COLLEGE

The decrease in the Administrative Reserve Fund was occasioned by charging the operating deficit for the year to the fund, and by the purchase of real estate. The increase in the Securities Income Reserve Fund resulted from the addition to the fund of surplus investment income earned during the year. The improvement of $5,955.08 in Undistributed Loss on Investments Sold reflects the net amount by which security gains realized during the year exceeded security losses taken. The decrease in the Reserve Fund for Depreciation of Buildings was due to extraordinary repairs and replacements amounting to $123,623.91 effected during the year, many of them long overdue. The Accidents Reserve Fund was closed out on June 30th and the balance in the account transferred to the Administrative Reserve Fund. This reserve fund had been set up to provide a reserve against costs incurred in connection with accidents to employees of the College. Since all employees are now covered by workmen's compensation insurance, it was felt there was no further need of this fund.

PLANT

Permanent plant capital increased $45,329.13 during the year. This item stood at $13,030,890.10 on June 30, 1945 and at $12,985,560.97 at the end of the previous year. The increase represents the acquisition of real estate with funds from the Administrative Reserve Fund.

In November 1944 the College purchased Cedar Lodge, a former rest home located at the corner of Washington and Upland Road, adjacent to Horton House. It is hoped to convert this property into faculty apartments at a later date.

In April 1945 the large vacant property on Washington Street between Cottage Street and Leighton Road, generally known as the Rollins estate, was purchased by the College.

Rented properties used for dormitory purposes this year were:

- House at 9 Abbott Street
- House at Wiswall Circle
- Webb House on Washington Street
- Joslin House on Washington Street
- Elms House on Washington Street

TREASURER'S REPORT

Because of the shortage of fuel oil during the fall, winter and spring, oil was burned only during breakdown periods; coal was the chief fuel for the power plant throughout the year, even through June 30th.

The contract between the College and the Building Service Employees International Union, Local No. 254, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, had provided for a possible one-year or two-year term, depending upon certain eventualities. The ending of the European phase of World War II in early May closed the current term of the contract on June 30, 1945. Negotiations for a new contract were opened and continued into the summer.

U. S. NAVY SUPPLY CORPS SCHOOL

Under the terms of the contract with the Navy, Pomeroy Hall was released to the College on June 30, 1944. The building was cleaned and painted throughout before the opening of the College in August.

On September 13, 1944 the entire Navy contract was completed and all facilities were returned to the College.

Cazenove Hall was completely refurbished and was ready for occupancy by students at the opening of the second semester in January.

Mary Hemenway Hall was returned to the use of the Hygiene and Physical Education Department, and the temporary partitions set up in the Recreation Building for the accommodation of the Navy were removed.

"The Well" was moved back from Alpha Kappa Chi to its former location in Alumnae Hall, where quarters were completely renovated before the opening on January 18, 1945.

As indicated earlier in the report, because the dormitories used by the Navy Supply Corps School were completely emptied of furniture and equipment following the departure of the Navy personnel, it was judged an opportune time to sand off floors, stairs and the like, and accomplish other necessary work. In this way considerably more than ordinary summer repairs was done. These buildings were thoroughly reconditioned and a rather considerable amount of repair and replacement of furnishings and equipment in the public spaces was done at the same time.

ENDOWMENT FUNDS

During the year ended June 30, 1945 trust funds showed a net increase of $79,077.25, of which $3,600.81 was unrestricted, bringing total funds up to $12,411,783.69 at the end of the year. The increase was brought about by the following factors:

Additions

Funds income added to principal. . . . .	$ 67,782.48
Legacies and gifts added to endowment. . . . .	186,610.67
Surplus investment income (added to Securities Income Reserve Fund). . . . .	48,843.95
Net profit for the year on investments sold. . . . .	5,955.08
	$309,192.18

Deductions

Net charge to Reserve Fund for Depreciation of Buildings. . . . .	$116,113.43
Purchase of real estate (charged to Administrative Reserve Fund). . . . .	45,128.03
Operating deficit for year (charged to Administrative Reserve Fund). . . . .	67,773.47
Miscellaneous charges to funds. . . . .	1,100.00
	230,114.93
	$ 79,077.25

In addition to gifts which were added to endowment funds, as shown above, $10,684.61 was received for current and specific purposes.

It is gratifying to note that Scholarship Funds increased $39,350.73 during the year, bringing the total up to $1,098,265.12.

Always of great significance to the College is the spirit of the Alumnae Association in its continuing activities on behalf of Wellesley. This year its gift to the College amounted to $45,621.75 and this was supplemented by other alumnae giving amounting to $122,457.23.

INVESTMENTS

On June 30, 1945 the market value of general investments, including principal cash, was $14,137,222.45, which was

The table below gives a statement, first published two years ago, of the relation between the historical book value of the College Funds (including Reserve Funds) and the market value of the assets representing them. It is interesting to note that as of June 30, 1945 the market value of these assets, representing all College Funds, exceeded the historical fund value by 20.26%.

TREASURER'S REPORT

CONCLUSION

Although the relatively unfavorable operating result for the year may in part be considered a reflection of the economic repercussions of the war, yet these same forces are continuing to exert their influence on the College budget. This makes it necessary to take a realistic view of Wellesley's future financial needs in relation to its existing resources. Certain of the factors responsible for last year's operating deficit can be controlled internally, but the fact remains that Wellesley must obtain additional endowment if the development of the College is not to be restricted because of financial limitations.

Great credit is due those at the College who, through the exercise of loyalty and sound judgment, have achieved so much in these difficult times.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN P. CHASE,
